Atlantic Coast Conference

The Atlantic Coast Conference was founded May 8, 1953, at Sedgefield Inn near Greensboro, N.C., with the seven charter members being Clemson University, Duke University, University of Maryland, University of North Carolina, North Carolina State University, University of South Carolina, and Wake Forest University. The University of Virginia joined the ACC in 1953 and Georgia Tech in 1964. The only withdrawal was South Carolina in 1971.

The present commissioner is Gene Corrigan, formerly the athletic director at Notre Dame. Corrigan is only the third commissioner of the ACC. The conference offices are located at 6011 Landmark Center Boulevard, Greensboro, N.C. 27407.

Seven of the eight conference schools participate during the volleyball season. Wake Forest is the only school without a volleyball program.

Recognizing excellence in conference competition, the NCAA extends an automatic tournament bid to the ACC Tournament champion.

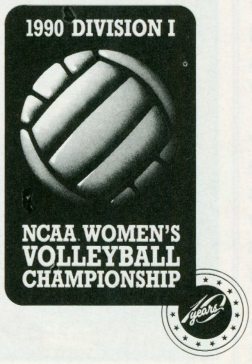
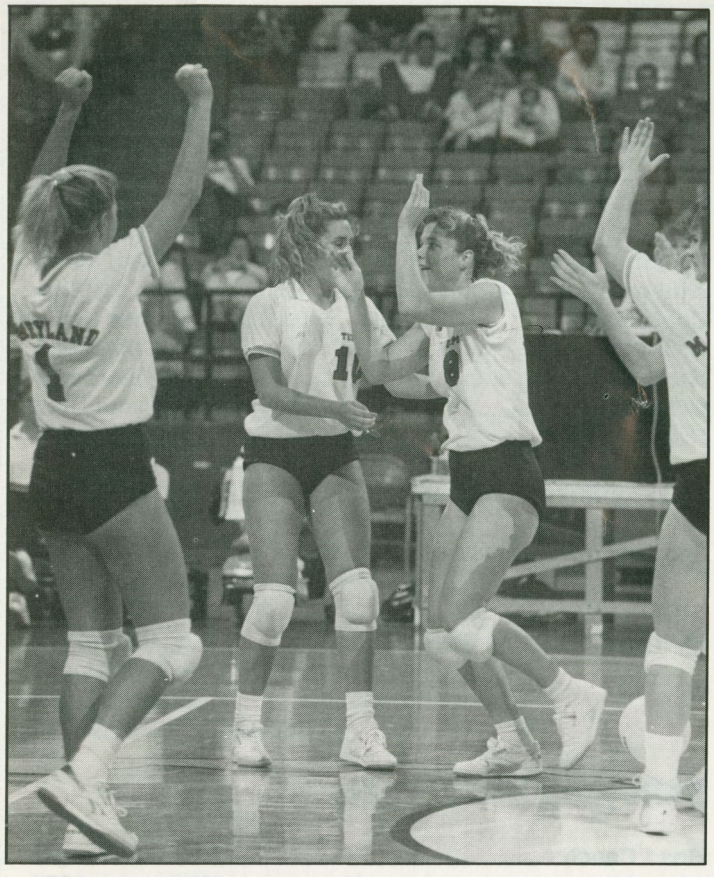
Maryland Plays Host to 1990 Division I Women's Volleyball Championship



The University of Maryland will be the site of the 1990 women's National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) Division I Volleyball Championship.

This is the first time the championships, scheduled for December 13-15, 1990, will be held in Cole Field House. It is also the first time the NCAA Women's Volleyball Championship will be held on the East Coast.

"Obviously we are pleased that the NCAA has seen fit to host many of its championship events at the University of Maryland," said Dr. Sue Tyler, the University's interim athletic director. "Certainly it shows that our overall athletics program, our staff, and our coaches are respected nationally. The volleyball championship, specifically, should be a boom to our program and to the sport in general in this part of the country. We feel volleyball can be one of the next growth sports at Maryland, and by bringing the Final Four to Cole Field House we will be offering the best volleyball to the public."



Victory is won not in miles, but in inches. Win a little now, hold your ground and later win a little more.

Hope springs eternal at the University of Maryland. When Head Coach Janice Kruger and the Terps completed their first season together in 1988, they patched together an 11-22 record. Though the numbers are not impressive at first glance, the mark included a stunning 3-2 win over Duke in the first round of the Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament and newfound confidence. The first few inches of victory were claimed.

A year later, the Terps posted a 23-15 mark, again reaching the semifinals of the ACC Tournament and, again, inch by inch, measuring up to Kruger's expectations. The 1989 season included a 15-match win streak and hard-fought battles against ACC rivals. The Terps won the Maryland Invitational with two impressive wins over city rival George Washington—in the first round and in the championship, as well as capturing the George Mason Invitational and LaSalle-Philadelphia Invitational.

With a solid foundation, growth in the volleyball program at Maryland will enter a new phase in 1990. The national volleyball spotlight will focus on Maryland as the College Park campus will play host to the NCAA Division I National Championship. Attention will also be paid to the Terp squad which returns an experienced, but young group of players and welcomes talented newcomers. Clocking hours in the weight room and on the court this spring, the Terps not only want to hold their ground, but move ahead on the ruler of success.

We had a very productive spring," says Head Coach Janice Kruger. "The young players have made improvements, in individual skills and in team play. We have made a lot of progress with our defense this spring.

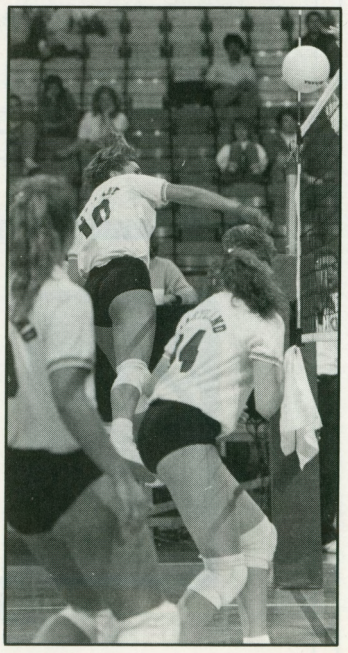
"Maryland has a lot of potential to become an east coast power in national competition. The team worked very hard in the off season to make improvements. Individually, players pushed to enter a different phase of their volleyball life."

The new phase begins for a squad returning one senior and seven underclassmen. Senior Marji Brown, a 5-10 outside hitter, will move into a new role. The 1990 captain was motivated to work hard this summer to return in top form. A solid all-around player, Brown's consistency and leadership will be a must with a young team. With three years of playing experience, Brown has been groomed to have her best season yet.

A strong group of juniors will be the main factor in determining the success of the Terp unit. Colleen Hurley, a junior transfer who played her first year in 1989, will return from off season back surgery and rehabilitation. The leading returning hitter, Hurley missed six matches at the end of the season, but played in the ACC Tournament and earned second team honors. Hurley's combination of a powerful attack and excellent defensive skills give the Terps added punch. Her .344 hitting percentage is the highest among the Terp hitters and her 425 digs led the team, testament to her accuracy and defensive abilities.

Setters Andrea Mandella and Joan Hosty return to the ranks with good off season training behind them. Mandella tried out for a spot on the National Sports Festival squad during the summer, and that off-season experience will help her make the transition to a higher level of play. Mandella's Sports Fest experience will also bring a higher level of intensity to her game at Maryland. The leading assist player (844), as well as ace artist (52), Mandella supplies tough defense as well. Her 324 digs placed her just behind leader Hurley. The most consistent all-around player, Hosty, is a sharp ball control player with developing skills in hitting and setting. A strong team player, Hosty makes the passers work for her and maintains consistency in her setting. Quick and confident, Tasha Barr returns for her third year to spark the team defensively. Barr's improvements over the season and the spring will help the Maryland backcourt.

The 1989 season gave the freshmen time to develop their skills and strength while also gaining valuable playing time. Dini Fragas played in all but one of the Terp matches this year and was challenged by the spring program. As an outside hitter for her first year, she could experience a position change to middle hitter, a spot vacated by Jacie Miller and All-ACC player Kelli Myers. An improved intensity level and capabilities suited to the middle hitter position will upgrade Fragas's performance and the Terp attack. The height of Nicole Mould, at



Marji Brown

5-11, and Andi Oakes, at 5-10, will give Maryland an advantage at the net.

With a season of practice and game experience, as well as off season workouts, both players will have better defensive skills. Oakes is an outstanding player and middle hitter who also had a good tryout at Sports Fest. Her aggressive attack and blocking skills figure well into the Terps game plan. A productive spring gave Oakes the opportunity to become more comfortable in collegiate competition. Good performances and improved play in off season tournaments also should translate into a strong season for Mould. The former All-Prince George's County Player of the Year is adapting to the faster pace of the collegiate game and has bolstered her outside hitting power.

Four recruits will join the Maryland entourage. Andrea Hudy, an aggressive player and fierce competitor will lift practices and game play whether on the court or the bench. The Huntingdon, Pa., native plays with a high level of intensity. Joining Hudy is Nicole Lantagne. Lantagne will provide immediate help with her setting experience. The setter on the No. 1 San Diego Juniors team, Lantagne will challenge Mandella and Hosty and become a force on the squad.

Keen attacking and blocking skills will make newcomer Jennifer Boner an asset to the Terp front row. Boner's potential and experience, along with a good team personality, will help her adapt to the Maryland program. Lefthander Kelly Roberts made the commitment to specialize in volleyball last year and her potential and enthusiasm are good additions to the squad. The 6-0 hitter from Cary, Ill. played with the Sports Performance club in Chicago and could boost the right side or middle attack. The abilities of the incoming freshmen will blend well with the experience and style of the veterans, making the means to a championship season all the easier.

"I'm excited for the new people coming in," says Mandella. "Hopefully we'll have a bunch of hardworking people coming together to push for success this year."

The returning team members know their journey to excellence and victory is one of constant improvement, commitment and persistence. Maryland's road to victory is not without its oasises along the way. The Terps' dedication and enthusiasm for the growing program fuels their appetite for a common goal: to win the ACC Tournament.

"I have seen improvement in our play and I want to end my career on a high note," says Brown. "We had a great off season and we have good athletes coming in and good returning players. If we work to our potential we have the chance to win the ACC championship and advance to nationals."

"If everyone works hard, we have a chance for a really successful season," Hurley adds. "Everyone needs to work hard and I think we are all dedicated enough to do that."

Kruger also recognizes the progression of the Maryland team and the steps necessary for further development and future success. Strong and smart play by the Terps must meet the demands of a tougher schedule and a coach who expects realization of goals.

Colleen Hurley

"There are times when a coach wants more—it would be unrealistic for a coach not to, "says Kruger, "I always want more—no matter what level the team gives.

"One key factor for the season is what they learned in the off-season and the growth they make early as a team. Early season success will help us maintain momentum and intensity throughout the season."

The best collegiate volleyball teams will not only be on the Cole Field House court for the national championship in December, but also on the Terrapin schedule. In addition to ACC powers North Carolina and Duke, Penn State, South Carolina and San Diego State also grace the schedule. Cole Field House will play host to both the Terrapin Invitational and the Maryland Invitational in 1990. West Virginia, Tennessee, George Washington and ACC foes Virginia and N.C. State are a part of the exciting home agenda.

"The schedule will be a very demanding one," says Kruger. "It has been upgraded to help us prepare to win the ACC championship. We tied for third place in the conference last year and we want to continue to improve."

The itinerary for 1990 success is set. Measurements of excellence, commitment and hard work inch the Terps closer to victory.

Team Awards

100 % Award

This person consistently gives a 100% effort. She may or may not be your best player; regardless, she works hard whether she is playing, practicing or sitting on the bench. She is also a hustler! Her overall consistent effort makes us all better players. She not only works hard, but most importantly, she works to do things correctly.

1989	Colleen Hurley
1988	Colleen Hurley

Most Improved Player

Within this person you have seen the greatest improvement overall this season. Age is not a concern. Look at the overall player and the changes, work and effort she has done to accept coaching and improve her overall game.

1989	Nicole Mould
1988	Marji Brown

Leadership Award

This person is a true leader in practice, in matches and off the court. Consider academics, emotions, athletic ability and everything you feel is an important aspect of a true team leader.

1989	Jacie Miller
1988	Pammy Krausman

Most Valuable Player

This award may be viewed from many different angles: Leadership, physical ability, attitude, hard work, and/or effort. Probably more importantly, it is the person that makes a genuine effort to be a combination of all the mentioned traits and has a truly positive effect on the University of Maryland.

1989	Kelli Myers
1988	Pammy Krausman

Spirit Award

This is an on or off the court award. This person's words and actions are focused in a very positive manner which not only help her own play, but also encourages others to do their best.

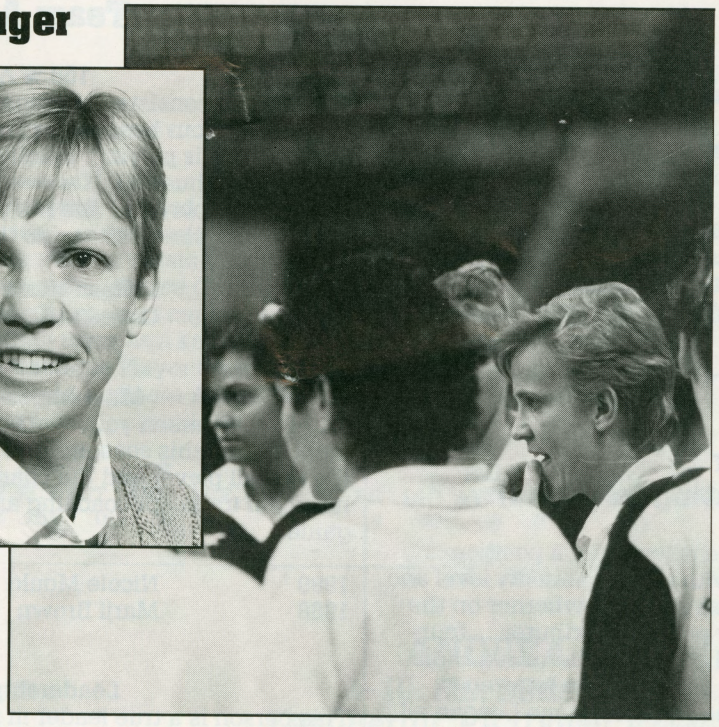
1989	Jacie Miller
1988	Christine Sheffe

Freshman of the Year

This person must be a true freshman. As a freshman, this player had the most positive impact on the volleyball team in whatever terms you chose.

1989	Nicole Mould
1988	Andrea Mandella

Coach Janice Kruger



Proceeding along the ruler of success, Maryland volleyball is marking accomplishment in small increments, but progressing steadily all the same. Head Coach Janice Kruger's standards are high, but she fully expects the Terps to measure up.

Over the last two seasons, the Terp program has experienced steady growth. In 1989, Kruger and the Terps added 23 victories in the win column and advanced to the semi-final round of the Atlantic Coast Conference Championships. Tournament titles, too, were claimed with Maryland winning its own Invitational, the George Mason Invitational and the LaSalle-Philadelphia Invitational.

Kruger came to Maryland in the spring of 1988 and her impact on the team has been immediate. It's no wonder, however, for Kruger has a winning attitude, one that carries over from her nine seasons at the University of Nebraska at Omaha. With the Lady Mavs, she compiled a 352-96 record and led her teams four times to the coveted Final Four. At UNO, Kruger was twice honored as the NCAA Division II Coach of the Year. While marks of excellence already crowd her personal ruler of success, Kruger will reach a prestigious milestone this season — her 400th career victory.

The many marks of excellence hold tribute to a distinguished career and coaching talent. In addition to being named NCAA Coach of the Year twice, Kruger was tabbed North Central Conference Coach of the Year twice and North Central Region Coach of the Year once. She has coached five All-Americans, one Honorable Mention All-America, 26 All-North Central Conference players, three All-ACC players and 13 North Central Conference All-Academic Players.

A four-year high school MVP in volleyball, Kruger went on to play college ball at the University of Nebraska at Lincoln, where she earned three varsity letters and served as captain during her senior season. She earned an undergraduate degree in physical education in 1977 and her Master's Degree in 1980.

Her coaching career started in 1978 at Platte Technical Community College, where Kruger guided the team to a 23-9 record and a berth in the National Jr. College Tournament.

Ellen Dempsey Assistant Coach

Joining Janice Kruger's staff this season is Ellen Dempsey, who for the past two years was the head volleyball coach at Southern Oregon State College.

Dempsey brings to the staff six years of coaching experience, both as a head coach and assistant. Last year, as she led Southern Oregon State to a 23-18 record, 8-1 in the Cascade Conference, Dempsey was honored as the NAIA District II Coach of the Year and Cascade Conference Co-Coach of the Year. Those two honors highlight an impressive resume.

Prior to her two-year stint at Southern Oregon State, he was for two years the assistant coach at Northern Michigan University (1986-87) and for two years the head coach at Lansing (Mich.) Community College (1984-85). Her 1985 LCC team won the Michigan Junior College Athletic Association Western Conference and were runners-up in its three-state region.

A four-time letterwinner in volleyball at Michigan State, Dempsey graduated from MSU with a Bachelor of Science in Environmental Education in 1986. She received her master's in Exercise Science from Northern Michigan in 1988.
